Gay group trying harder to make it to Congress

By Ondrej Calais
Reporter, The Philippine Daily Inquirer

MANILA CITY—THE GROUP APO Lallad and its members are working to ensure the obstacles in its path for accreditation so that Filipino gay and lesbian social representatives in Congress will not be just a pipe dream.

Louise Geronimo Lallad, 40, APO Lallad member, said the Commission on Elections disqualified the group in 2007 on the grounds that it failed to prove it had a nationwide membership.

"The group we are doing the present work to satisfy the 3 regional representative requirements. So we have been going around, but positions to collect support from gay and lesbian groups," said Lallad, who attended the Gay

Prize match here on Sunday.

She said APO Lallad members visited Cebu City Congress on the 20th, University of Cebu, Manila and Iloilo cities recently to organize chapters and strengthen their own group for party-list accreditation.

She said the group would submit to the Commission on Elections and the Senate in June 2005 a petition to prove they have members in provincial and local government.

"(The Commission) said we are not representing a marginalized sector that we are representing 18 percent of the population," Lallad said.

The Commission had rejected the group's application for accreditation, saying that "support from our field offices reveal that it doesn't exist in most regions of the country."

Lallad said APO Lallad will push for Anti-Discrimination Bill that gives lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) equal rights and opportunities in schools, workplaces, public, entertainment venues and government offices.

On Sunday, about 100 gay and lesbian activists joined Lallad, Sen. Benigno Aquino III's office in Manila to hold a press conference and handing out rainbow-colored balloons.

The match was organized by the Baguio Pride Network as part of international gay pride celebrations that commemorated the 1969 Stonewall riots in New York City. The riots were supposed to be a police raid on a bar but has frequently been portrayed as a riot.

Influenza A (H1N1) Revised Response Levels System in Schools

Issued by:
DOH Emergency Management Task Force for the Pandemic Response to Influenza A(H1N1)

CRITERIA	RESPONSE LEVEL 1	RESPONSE LEVEL 2	RESPONSE LEVEL 3	RESPONSE LEVEL 4
	1.1 Confirmed cases of Influenza A (H1N1) in other countries but no confirmed case in the Philippines	2.1 Confirmed case of novel Influenza A (H1N1) in the country 2.2 No confirmed case in the school 2.3 No confirmed community level transmission	3.1 Confirmed cases of Influenza A (H1N1) in the country 3.2 Confirmed case in school 3.3 No confirmed community level transmission	4.1 Confirmed cases of Influenza A (H1N1) in the country 4.2 Confirmed community level transmission
RESPONSE	1.2 Keep updated about the status and extent of Influenza A (H1N1) globally 1.3 Campaign for proper hand washing, general hygiene and cough/sneeze manners 1.4 Make available hygiene and sanitation facilities 1.5 Line list and monitor health status of students, faculty and non-teaching personnel who have recently traveled to countries with confirmed cases of Influenza A (H1N1) virus infection 1.6 Observe precautionary measures during school gathering	2.1 Confirmed case of novel Influenza A (H1N1) in the country 2.2 No confirmed case in the school 2.3 No confirmed community level transmission 2.8 Students, faculty and non-teaching personnel with Influenza-Like Illness (ILI) shall not report to school but inform the school physician or local health authorities for proper advice 2.9 Isolate in designated room and refer to school physician or healthcare worker persons identified to have ILI while in the school 2.10 Establish referral system with local health care facilities 2.11 Report to local health authorities (MHO/CHO) and/or the regional DOH Center for Health Development	3.4 Implement Response Level 2 PLUS 3.5 Temporarily suspend classes in affected school ("for the extent of closure, refer to box below") 3.6 Lift suspension after 10 days	4.3 Implement Response Level 2 PLUS 4.4 As a rule, NO suspension of classes in schools located in areas with community level transmission. Exceptions are: 4.4.1 Unusually severe illness or clinical manifestations 4.4.2 Large number of simultaneously ill students and/or school staff 4.5 Reverse isolation: students and school employees residing in areas without community level transmission should be advised NOT to report to school until the number of ILI in area or school has subsided OR these students and school employees will be required to wear face mask 4.6 Strengthen public health interventions
Declaration of Suspension of Classes	1.7 No suspension of classes	2.12 No suspension of classes	3.7 If a school has a laboratory-confirmed case of Influenza A (H1N1), the school principal declares suspension of classes 3.8 If two or more schools in one city or municipality have confirmed cases of Influenza A (H1N1), the Division Superintendent declares the suspension of classes in the affected schools or depending on the location of schools affected, in the entire city or municipality 3.9 The Higher Education Institution heads declare suspension of classes in their respective schools	4.7 The school principal or head decides if school needs to be temporarily closed, based on: 4.7.1 Severity or manifestations of Influenza A (H1N1) illness among student or local population 4.7.2 Number of simultaneously ill students and/or school staff 4.7.3 Recommendation of the DOH or regional Center for Health Development
Reasons for suspending classes are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> To contribute to containment measures by limiting exposure to index case or cluster of cases in the school setting To allow school officials to plan and initiate or conduct for intensified campaigns in school and community for awareness and behavior change toward Request hand washing General personal hygiene, including ventilation of personal effects like cell phones and other closely held personal objects For schools to institute ventilation and decontamination measures in the school: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> General cleaning of the school Use of disinfectants for chairs, desks, door knobs, toilets, lavatories and garbage bins Ensure provision of water, soap and other supplies / facilities for proper hygiene practices For schools to continue with local health officials and the DOH regional Centers for Health Development who document and report the clinical manifestations and progress and investigate the likely means and routes of transmission of the infection. The extent or coverage of suspension of classes, colleges, institute or department or of the closure of schools to control Influenza A (H1N1) infection for Response Level 1 depends on the following factors: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Physical configuration of school buildings such that the area or areas frequented by the first confirmed cases can be delineated to a specific building or floor level and only classes in these areas may be suspended Location or class assignments of students. Students in other sections can be suspended altogether when one of them is a confirmed Influenza A (H1N1) case while keeping the rest of the school population from the pattern of classes especially when there are no confirmed cases in other sections School contingency plan in order to minimize both the spread of infection and the disruption of classes. This should include special arrangements for students or home quarantine to be able to catch up with lessons and for students on eventual isolation (as in Response Level II) to be accommodated in schools located in areas without community-level transmission Evaluation and recommendation of the DOH center or regional Centers for Health Development and local health authorities Affected schools should inform DepEd/CHO/TESSG regarding their decision to suspend classes, entirely close the school.
Confirmation of community level transmission is done by the Department of Health. School administrators shall closely coordinate with DOH regional Centers for Health Development in this regard. The Secretary of DepEd or Chairman of CHES/Director General of TESDA and their authorized representatives or officials may suspend classes according to information available to them or the recommendation provided by the DOH. As a rule, suspension of classes is lifted 10 (ten) calendar days after the diagnosis of the known confirmed case. By this time, school authorities should have carried out intensified hygiene and sanitation measures, contingency school program implementation and coordination with local health officials.

OMBUDSMAN IMPOSES 6-MONTH PREVENTIVE SUSPENSION W/O PAY

4 gov't officials probed for scam

By Philip C. Tuliao

OMBUDSMAN MA. MERCEDES N. Gutierrez has ordered the six-month preventive suspension without pay of four public officials pending an investigation of their alleged involvement in a tax scam.

Quezon City Region 4 Deputy Tax Marshal E. Lombrera and Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) officers Myrna Jane I. Tabije, Marcelito Ibarra and Renato C. Guevarra were ordered suspended after they were accused of gross misfeasance, dishonesty and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the service in connection with their assessment and collection of taxes from Tito, Thomas S. Maranan.

"Tax-fraud is a warning to public officers not to participate in these acts. Every year, the public coffers are drained out of billions of pesos because of these scams," said Secretary Jesus S. Santiago Jr., Presidential Adviser on Revenue Administration.

Santiago was the head of a special task force—composed of representatives from the Department of Justice, the Office of the Ombudsman and the Commission on Audit—which investigated and filed the complaint against the four officials.

The task force was created to probe corruption and irregularities in the transfer of real properties, and prosecute the private persons and public officers involved in these scams.

Lower tax rate

The case against the four was based on the BIR officials' failure to collect a six percent capital gains tax on a real estate transaction attributed by Maranan.

According to the BIR officials, Maranan should pay only a three percent withholding tax on all his real estate transactions because he was "habitually engaged in the selling of real estate properties."

Lombrera, meanwhile, neglected the real estate transaction even though the tax paid by Maranan was grossly underassessed and understated.

However, the Ombudsman later ruled that Maranan was not habitually engaged in the business of selling real properties and as such, was not qualified for the lower tax rate. In her action which was aimed merely to determine and the preventive suspension of the public officers, was warranted because the evidence of their guilt was strong, adding that their continued stay in office might prejudice the case filed against them.

She also cited the charges against those involved in defalcation and gross misfeasance and would ensure that removal from the service.

DPWH asks motorists for a little more patience

By Helen Ramos

PLEASE BE PATIENT.

This was the message of the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) to Metro Manila motorists yesterday amid complaints regarding the delays in the construction of a Bypass in Quezon City and the flooding triggered by a damaged dike in Marikina City.

DPWH officials said, as good motorists joining the Bypass Bypass and Layan Avenue to be more patient, saying the completion of the Bypass (Bypass) Bypass is the most critical and timely project in the city.

They said the project was part of a program to link the South and North Layan Expressway through the C-3 Road as ordered by President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo in her State of the Nation Address last year.

The project, which would be on the Manila-Corona Expressway, is to be completed in 2007, DPWH said. It would be completed before the summer, it added.

Motorists caught in the daily bottleneck in the area have been blaming the DPWH for its alleged failure to issue a public apology about the start of the project last week.

"This time, the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) is the one who is responsible for the delay in the project," said a DPWH spokesman.

He said the project is the most critical and timely project in the city.

Kings reach finals

Ginebra uses rain of triples to wash out Rain or Shine

By Cabell R. Tapas

WITH THE OFFENSE SIZZLING AND THE SHOOT-CLOCK WINDING DOWN EARLY in the fourth period, Ginebra swept Daniel Noy's double-triple and vaulted for a jumper from beyond the arc. Swish.

Noy's triple was just one of 35 three-pointers used last night in spelling several Rain or Shine players on the way to a series-clinching 106-90 victory that gave the reigning Philippine Cup Champions at the Alabino Coliseum.

"We're just happy we beat each other and not the other teams," said Ginebra coach Tim Lincecum after the Gin Kings won their straight games to take the series, 4-2. "Rain or Shine played us a much higher level of intensity and energy than if it was 4-2, this series would have been a lot easier."

BPO VILLAGE

Ayala sees green in John Hay

Text and photos by Vincent Cuevas
 Reporter: Barbara Laron

BAGUIO CITY—AYALA LAND INC. (ALI) PLANTED LAST week about a thousand pine trees near the Camp John Hay property here that it intends to convert into a high-end business process outsourcing village.

ALI and CPOC executives lead the tree-planting activity.

ALI PLANS to build its TechPark and employment Camp John Hay.

The activity made public the firm's presence in the nearby wild tourist capital, where it plans to follow a "green industry" principle in real estate development, said James B. Ali, assistant vice president for business development.

The firm is investing up to P3 billion to revitalize the Camp John Hay project initiated in 2006 by P3 billion-owned Camp John Hay Development Corp. (CJHD).

By said ALI was marketing the new project under the brand name "Ayala Land Businesspark" to describe a business process outsourcing village aligned with the ALI network of BPO hubs, which include the Ayala facilities at the University of the Philippines campus in Diliman, Quezon City and, from, Laguna.

"What is most important for the developing master plan, however, is how the firm's sustainability report that runs the Camp John Hay project," Ali said. According to Barbara Neri, ALI con-porate communications officer, the firm has reconstituted all of its projects with environment-friendly facilities using "a systematic review and re-investment of environmental management strategies in the life-cycle stages of Ayala Land projects, from master planning and design to construction and property management."

During a May 4 briefing for the city council, Jerry, Richard Gervilla, ALI Executive Vice President, said, pointing up the BPO village here would run through the same process.

The firm said the final plan to be chosen by Ali Group may still see development along most of the road to its second land in Camp John Hay. Businesspark intends to operate right there away from the road that will house "incubation zones" for investors. It includes small-scale BPO facilities and "high-tech incubators" to house BPO companies, Gervilla said.

ALI also plans to develop small commercial stores to be set up between the main road and the incubators.

Race is on to create a new world of energy

By James van der Veer

WE STAND AT THE RACE LINE OF A new energy future. It will be powered by alternative energy and cleaner fossil fuels. If governments adopt the right rules and incentives, by the middle of this century, renewable sources will provide nearly 50 percent of the world's energy.

Energy will be needed to build needed sustainable facilities. The world's highways will double and cities with vehicles powered by all manner of energy: wind, diesel, electricity, biofuels, natural gas and hydrogen.

In the years ahead, conventional fossil fuel use will grow increasingly for on every line of fuel. Biofuels will account for up to 15 percent of liquid transport fuel in the next few decades.

Our fossil-fuel-dependent world that by 2030, up to 15 percent of new cars worldwide could be hybrid electric, such as Toyota's Prius, some of them capable of juggling in to exchange their batteries.

By 2030, fuel cell vehicles powered by hydrogen will be a small but growing part of the fleet. By 2050, more than a billion cars will be on the road, more than double today's total. Greater variety of fuel choices will be a boon for consumers. Different fuels will be available in different regions.

In South America, biofuels will likely predominate. In Brazil, ethanol from sugarcane already supplies more than 40 percent of demand for petrol. China, meanwhile, plans to expand production and use of "liquid" and electric vehicles, tapping its vast coal deposits to generate power.

Wind, solar and hydro power will account for 50 percent of electricity generation by 2030, up from about 18 percent today. More new coal-fired power plants are expected to improve CO₂ emissions and may be widely underground, rather than pump it into the atmosphere.

Plants increasingly will run on coal or gas, rather than burn it. They will then burn the gas to produce power, or use it as raw material for a variety of chemical products, while CO₂ will be captured and stored.

Indeed, fuel fuels, coal, oil and natural gas, will continue to provide more than half the world's energy in 2050, building a long bridge to an era when all industries can take over.

A growing population and higher standards of living for billions of people in the developing world will mean that we need all available sources of energy to keep the world's economies humming. So, while the world needs to build up alternative fuels, it must also find new sources of fossil fuels, including unconventional ones, such as oil sands.

And we must accelerate efforts to make fossil fuels cleaner, by reducing the

James van der Veer

CO₂ emitted in their production and use. Some of this will be using oil, though. Industry and government regulations must change on a large scale and at an unprecedented pace.

According to the International Energy Agency, by 2050, we will need to invest $2.5 trillion globally in renewable energy. Billions more must go into upgrading electricity transmission networks to handle increased demand and the siting and siting power generated by wind and solar.

Much of this money will come from private companies, but governments will need to continue using tax credits and other incentives to encourage the growth of renewables. They are still small relative to the world's overall energy needs.

Including hydro power, renewables account for about 7 percent of global energy. Wind today supplies about 1 percent, with approximately 15,000 turbines. Similarly, thanks partly to billions of dollars in government subsidies, solar now supplies about 1 percent.

To judge from society's experience with nuclear power and other technologies, new energy sources take about 20 years to reach significant scale.

Energy companies are already preparing for the future, increasing production of current gas, the dominant fossil fuel, investing in renewables, and testing sustainable fuels, and searching ways to capture CO₂ and store it safely underground.

But the certainty of the challenges means that governments should do its part in encouraging society's shift to a new energy supply.

The transition, now technologically within grasp, will require robust government support to ensure nothing gets in the way of a better world.

One critical step is to set a price on greenhouse gas emissions—doing so in all leading countries, not merely a few. It's a system that says emissions matter, and allows companies to trade emission allowances, as Europe's already does.

Cap-and-trade means almost always cap a relatively steady CO₂ price, which FARRAH FAWCETT'S tousled hairstyle was the most requested look when hair stylist Sergio began his hair-and-makeup business in the 1980s.

"The request came from all social strata, upper or lower. They all wanted to look like her," said Irujo, who opened his first salon in 1981 at the El Mirlo Apartments in Cadiz, Spain's Cádiz.

Cher's Angel—Did Thelma & Louise riding in Manila give a showgirl battle with Cher's Angel? She says no. Her beauty—created by South African designer Alannah Hillhouse—was enough to win her everywhere in the world. It became so popular that, well, now, it's known simply as The Parole, according to

 (2000),¹ highlighted some of the commonalities and distinct research needs for the economic and social sciences. Indeed, new research needs have been identified, and the need for a new paradigm to launch new advanced research in single universities, as well as by representatives from the global academic research community.

William G. Zartman, President of the American Economic Association, has been a strong proponent since 1998, when Juan Francisco Gonzalez,
